

Punctuation: Commas

1. Pair up/group sentences which seem alike

2. The commas in each sentence have a function, which?

- A. I had pie, potatoes and vegetables for dinner.
- B. Tom is our handsome new managing director.
- C. Dick has, surprisingly, become head of department.
- D. The doctor who lives in the village has married Tom's sister.
- E. I like vegetables but Harry likes meat.
- F. "I won't," Tom said, "I'll just have water."
- G. If you want a beer, I can drive.
- H. Harry is tall, dark and handsome.
- I. Harry is, believe it or not, leaving the company.
- J. It was a stupid, thoughtless, hurtful thing to say
- K. Dick ordered fish and chips with vinegar, and Tom decided that he would prefer an American pizza.
- L. "I would like a pint of beer with my fish and chips," said Dick.
- M. I can drink beer if you drive.
- N. We all know that you cannot drink and drive.
- O. I am going to the pub with Tom, Dick and Harry.
- P. Dick, who lives in the village, went to the wedding.